Fort Hood, in cooperation with National Conference Services Incorporated, hosted a Technology Exposition Friday at the Phantom Warrior Center. More than 30 local and national exhibitors were on hand demonstrating their latest technology. The show was open to everyone.

"Impressive show," Spc. Aaron Almand, a communications technician assigned to the 411th Military Police Company, said. "It's good for the Soldiers to be able to see what's out there."

Soldiers enjoyed seeing the gadgets and products available at the expo.

"It's great, good products," Chief Warrant Officer Thomas Shefflette, an aviation maintenance officer assigned to the 4th Combat Aviation Brigade, said.

Shefflette was not alone in his opinion of the items displayed.

"Neat gadgets and a lot of interesting information out here," Chief

Warrant Officer Cory Webster, an aviation safety officer assigned to the 4th CAB, added.

According to Alexandra Gargon, event coordinator for NCIS, the company puts together events such as this one so that all Soldiers can see all the latest and greatest technology out on the market.
